New Call for Proposals for the BC Open Textbook Project

Bccampus is pleased to announce two more Calls for Proposals related to the BC Open Textbook Project:

- Call for adaptations for those faculty wishing to modify existing open textbooks and other OER to produce high quality open textbooks. More information at: <http://www.bccampus.ca/open-textbook-project/open-textbooks-call-for-proposals-phase-2/>
- Call for further faculty reviewers of texts not reviewed during our first round last spring. More information at: <http://www.bccampus.ca/open-textbook-project/call-for-further-reviewers/>

If you have any questions, please email opentext@bccampus.ca.

Wanna Talk about it ETUG?

While we've been quite successful in providing ETUG members with great networking and sharing at our Fall and Spring workshops (See Spring Workshop 2013 Feedback), one of the things we've not quite addressed on is how to support ongoing and thoughtful online conversations between these events. ...

ETUG Turns 20: Where We Came From

This article contributed by SCETUG member, Emily Schudel.

Welcome to our first article celebrating the 20th anniversary of ETUG! Today, Where We Came From.

Once upon a time (1990) there was the Standing Committee on Educational Technology (SCOET) “a college and institute system-wide committee ...
